lopment Block Grant (CDBG), intended for the extension of central sewerage in Shoreline Park, drew no public input

Dawn Ross, grants coordina-tor for South Mississippi Planning and Development District (SMPDD) presented a report to county sewer district commissions, revealing the amount the county will seek is $250,000. She said district engineer Duke Levy submitted a total cost estimate of $600,000 for the extension of the present Shoreline Park line. The area to be addressed is northeast of the present lines and will service 138 homes and 314 residents. The district intends to make a loan from the State Revolving Fund (SRF) for $349,950.

Residential and commercial sewer user fees will repay the loan as well as previous loans. made for outlay of the initial

Stennis International awarded $104,000 grant

BY LIZ HAAS

The Department of Transportation awarded Stennis International Airport and Airpark a $104,000 grant to install signs on runways and taxiways and to install fencing.

The grant is 90 percent federal with 10 percent matched by the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, bringing the total to $120,000, according to Port and Harbor Commission executive director Buz Olsen.

"This is a start in getting this airport the infrastructure it needs," said Olsen, "It's been a long time coming, and I guess the activity has created the

The airport has the second longest runway in the state, at 8,500 feet and has recently begun an expansion to handle the arrival of charter jet service.

More workers equal more unemployment A rise in the civilian work Jackson County rose from 5.6 to force in Hancock County caused 5.9; Pearl River County went a higher unemployment rate, based on figures published by the Mississippi Employment Security Commission.

Although there were 20 more persons employed in Hancock County from February to March, the labor force increased by 130 persons. Hancock County's unemployment rate has risen for the past three months and has exceeded the state's rate for the first time in several months. It remains under the national level.

MESC announced a 7.1 percent unemployment rate for Hancock County, 6.9 percent for the state of Mississippi and a 7.3 percent rate for the nation, compared to rates last year at this time of 6.5 for the county, 8.3 for the state and 7.7 percent unemployment for the U.S.

Neighboring counties also experienced a rise in unemployment rates. Harrison County went from 4.8 percent in February to 4.9 percent in March;

5.9: Pearl River County went from 7.7 to 8.1; and Stone County rose from 7.3 to 8.9 percent.

The civilian labor force for Hancock County was listed at 14,200 persons, with 1.010 unemployed persons.

Lagarde cleanup postponed again

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Bay St. Louis City Council voted three to two in favor of extending the time for Chris Lagarde to begin repairs to his 203 Citizen Street house.

On April 20, the city council approval a resolution in which phases of repairs were outlined. The burned out house was to be repaired by June 20, beginning with removal of the front porch and front room by May 5. City building official Kevin had not complied with the terms of the resolution.

Fitzpatrick stated he had not heard from Lagarde concerning signature of the agreement or issuance of a building permit until that day (May 5).

He added Lagarde said he was instructed by his attorney not to sign the resolution.

Mary Lee Lagarde, the owner's mother, spoke to the council on her son's behalf, claiming the city's refusal to issue a building permit has hindered Lagarde's ability to work on the structure. Fitzpatrick said Lagarde did not need a building permit to comply with the request to remove the front two rooms, which in his opinion presented the greatest menace. Councilman-at-large James Rutherford moved that the resolution be amended to allow Largade two more weeks to comply with the conditions.

Councilmen Tom Farve and John Wilkerson objected to the motion, saying Lagarde had agreed to the conditions. The resolution was amended with Farve and Wilkerson dissenting.

SCHOOL DISTRICT

Bay-Waveland School District Superintendent Paul Tisdale appeared informally before the council to discuss the city's $300,000 donation.

Ward 1 councilman Charles Scianna asked, "What can we do to make it easier for you to

He added the cost for running lines under the existing railroad track will involve borings, adding thousands to project cost for extensions north.

The board hired Cortech in response to an October 30, 1992 letter from James I. Palmer Jr., executive director of the state Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ); The letter named areas west and southwest of Waveland, including Clermont Harbor and Bay Side Park, as those DEQ felt were to be "strongly considered" in any future studies for wastewater collection and treatment needs.

The letter reasoned, "since these areas are also near to the regional treatment facility and have a significant potential for development."

Cordon assured the board the completion of preliminary drawings would satisfy present state Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) concerns.

"I believe," Cordon com-mented Monday, "with the lack of grants and cost of systems, DEQ will become more flexible and concentrate on the more populated areas."

GRAND LARCENY/AUTO THEFT, MALICIOUS MISCHIEF, BURGLARY

Alphonse Campbell, 21, of Pass Christian, was arrested Friday and charged with two counts of grand larceny/auto theft, two counts of malicious mischief and one count on burglary, according to Hancock County Sheriff's Office Detective Matt Karl.

Campbell is incarcerated at the Hancock County Justice Facility under a $10,000 bond.

Karl said a call came into the office about 2:30 a.m. Friday morning from a Kino Street, Diamondhead resident, saying her house was being burglarized.

The Diamondhead resident identified the burglar as an acquaintance who resides in Pass Christian.

"She had been away from home and when she returned he was there hiding in her closet. He fled the home and threw an ax through the window destroying it," said Karl.

Karl reported the burglar stole her Jeep, running into a ditch while trying to leave and fled on foot to a nearby house where he stole a bicycle. "He rode the bike to North Gate Lumber Company in Diamond-head, where he stole a truck and drove it through the lumber company gate, knocking it completely down," said Karl. At that time, Karl said the Sheriff's Office called the Pass Christian Police Department for assistance, and together they were able to locate the stolen truck in Pass Christian. Campbell was picked up at his home for questioning by the Sheriff Office and Pass Police Department.

"He voluntarily gave statements admitting to the charges," said Sheriff's deputies who responded to the call were Rick Boutwell and Corky Hoda. Karl was the investigator on call. Detective Nathan Hoda is in charge of the follow-up investigation.

Many will hate to see Brother Aquin Gauthier, who was alumni/public relations director since 1970, leave St. Stanislaus for a new assignment in Baton Rouge.

Brother Aquin has been very active during his stay at St. Stanislaus and has really been the school's ambassador to the community among his other chores.

There is no question he will be missed by the alumni of St. Stanislaus as well as by the students and residents of the area.

I sure will miss his dropping by the office frequently with news releases and photos about the students and activities at SSC.

I am wishing the best for Brother Acquin at Catholic High in Baton Rouge. The loss to St. Stanislaus will be Catholic High's gain.

I am hoping Brother Aquin will be visiting SSC frequently and keep in touch with so many friends he has acquired over the years.

Summer is fast approaching, and many parents are making plans for vacations, but there will also be time available to do other things.

I would like to suggest to parents the importance in keeping children active in educational programs while having summer fun, too.

This summer our library system will be offering many interesting activities to our youth, one in particular will be the Summer Reading Incentive Program.

This program is to encourage youth to read and enable them to receive some awards, too.

There will also be a puppet show, animal shows, magic show, story telling, face painting, NASA program, and a craft show to learn how to make puppets and/or posters and other things.

Parents may want to call their local library to check the dates and times of the programs.

Locations of our libraries are: City-County Library, 312 Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis; Waveland Library, 333 Coleman Avenue, Waveland; and Kiln Library, 16603 Highway 603, Kiln.

Dear Editor.

I'm real proud of my town, and one of the things that I brag about is that our city fathers insisted that the gambling operations be out of the city limits. And it now very nice and exciting, but not involving local people unless they choose it.

Now I understand there are some (who were formerly against gambling, but greed set in), who are planning a gambling establishment right in the middle of town on the beach.

Children going to our local and private schools will pass it each day. People going to church or just enjoying a lazy stroll through the many quaint shops will now be accosted by the blinking neon and the razzle-dazzle.

Please, don't ruin our little town. If gambling must be keep it out of town.

Baldree better suited for elementary principal

Dear Editor, I am writing in regards to the re-positioning of our principal at Waveland Elementary School, Mr James Baldree. Waveland Elementary is a school we all can be proud of, largely due to Mr. Baldree. Mr. Baldree has done a fine job and continues to do so. Mr. Baldree keeps the best interest of the children first. This leads me to question the school board and their decision to remove Mr. Baldree. If the children are your first concern, why would you want to change an administra-tive system that is working?

Mr. Baldree has dedicated 16 years of his life to lower elementary education. I also want to ask the parents of the junior high if they feel that putting someone who has concentrated on lower education for 16 years in as principal of their school is in the best interest of their children, too.

Mr. Baldree and the teachers at Waveland Elementary encourage parents to get involved in their children's education. I have volunteered a lot this year and would like to applaud Mr. Baldree and the teachers for a job well done!

To the Bay-Waveland School Board...you may think we are all singing the same song, but let me assure you, we are just. tuning up!

Sincerely, Sharon Bissonnette Waveland

Somehow, Cole seems to regard the DLC as some sort of threat to him or an invasion of. his turf. One reason seems to be his personal rivalry with Wilson Golden, the executive vice-chairman of the Mississippi Democratic Party. Cole is black; Golden is white.

Golden has been active in promoting the DLC in the state, and was along, with Espy, one of the early participants in the DLC as a catalyst for yanking the Democratic Party nationally away from the Eastern liberal establishment which had

In fact, Golden was the key figure in organizing and getting sponsors for the elegant DLC soiree for Espy at the Ag and Forestry Museum, followed the next day by a forum on "Reinventing Government" which had Dr. Elaine Kamarck, director of V-P Gore's national performance review task force, as speaker.

Cole has somehow kept the party chairmanship by playing the racial card holding all the black members on the state Democratic executive committee in line in any showdown for leadership. Since blacks have a slight majority, he's held on by a

In the recent 2nd Congressional District special election to name a replacement for now-Secretary of Agriculture Espy, Cole's obvious favoritism for Bennie Thompson, the black county supervisor from Bolton, soured his relations with Espy followers, since the secretary's brother, Henry Espy, was in the race. Although there was a later patching up of differences on the surface, the fact Cole boycotted the ceremony for Secretary Espy indicates a chill is still there. The message which the Agriculture secretary brought to the DLC affair was one that Mississippi Democrats should acutely understand: "We have to broaden our base and reach out to more people" Specifically, Espy mentioned such areas as mostly white Northeast Mississippi, where once the Democra-Party was dominant but anymore; and also Eastern Mississippi where hoped-for swing voters doomed Clinton's chances of carrying the state last November.

Espy, the hard-working Clinton cabinet member (he was seen working alone in the huge Department of Agriculture Building on the night of the March 13 blizzard in Washington), stole away from the Democratic gathering in Jackson the other night to see his 11-yearold son, Mikie, play in a Jackson Little League baseball game just a couple of blocks away.

The next morning, the proud dad (Espy was divorced two and a half years ago) reported that Mikie's team lost, but Mikie drove in two runs with a long single to center, and he was happy.

Now a lot of Mississippi Democrats want Mike Espy to come back often and put the prestige of the Clinton Administration to work in this league down here.

Honoring a friend or loved one has never been easier.

SMPDD director of community development Grace Aaron explained the rating number represents the percentage of residents classified as low to moderate income within the proposed area.

Combat weeds early for best results

By Dr. Milo Burnham Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Weeds (plants out of place) take a lot of joy out of vegetable gardening. Invariably, after a good, clean beginning, the vegetable garden becomes weed infested. Rows and walkways that were clean at planting time suddenly turn green as if carpeted. The nap on this carpet is made up of millions of little weed seedlings. Where could they have possibly come from? If you'll think back to late last summer, you'll probably remember letting some late season weeds escape and go to seed. That's the mistake you're paying for now.

It's common knowledge that weed seeds germinate faster than most vegetable seeds, weed seedlings grow faster than vegetable seedlings, and weeds they can't compete for water We don't have to let the ables to see which can get the fertilizer and water. It's not even a fair race because the weeds have a couple of tricks up their sleeve.

Weeds serve as a source of insects and diseases that can slow down or kill the vegetables while showing little or no effects themselves. The head start weeds get by growing faster allows them to shade and Garden of the Month. According to a garden club spokesman, it was the first time both awards were weeds have it all. With the time ly use of a combination of mulches, cultivation and chemicals, weeds can be stopped.

Weeds are easier to control when they are small. Don't let weeds get a strong foothold in the garden before you begin to think about doing something to control them. When the soil is dry enough, frequent light cultivations will keep small weed seedlings form becoming established.

Cultivation with a sharp hoe is an effective method of separating larger weed plants from their roots. On sunny days the severed plants will dry and be killed in most cases.

Where bermudagrass or purslane has gotten a foothold in the garden it is advisable to remove the weed plants since they may reestablish themselves if moisture is available.

Cultivating the garden and then applying a layer of organic mulch, such as pine needles or compost, shades the soil surface and deprives weed seedlings of light necessary for growth.

If the main weed problem is grass and the garden is too wet to cultivate, there are chemicals cleared for use on most (NOT ALL) vegetables that will control young, small grasses. There also are chemicals that can be applied where certain vegetables are to be planted that keep some weed seeds from germinating. Other chemicals can be applied after the yegetable plants or seeds are planted.

When you consider using chemical weed control in your garden it is important that you follow the directions on the pro-duct label. This means that you use the chemical only at the rate specified, that you use it in the manner specified (before or after planting and before or after the weed seeds germinate) and that you use it only on vegetables that are listed.

While many weeds are annuals (they grow from seeds each spring and make new seeds and die or are killed by frost), others are perennials and come back year after year in greater numbers and with greater strength unless stopped.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

How would you like smearing your bread, toast, muffin, hush puppie, flapjack or biscuit with corn oil instead of corn oil margarine? You wouldn't? It doesn't seem appetizing?

Of course not. Margarine has body, character, the right appearance for smearing on whatever we wish to eat.

It definitely has all the above; yet, a recent study warns us that liquid corn oil is much better for us than that same oil which has been hardened into margarine,

The very process of hardening, or emulsifying, is the problem. In order to make the vegetable oil take on the appetizing appearance of block margarine, hydrogen is added to the molecule of the unsaturated oil.

The result is both good and bad news: an attractive, tasty product, and a cholesterolelevating agent.

Cholesterol, Again. The article reporting the study findings went on to say that we must beware of all crackers and cookies, since they are made with hydrogenated oils.

Putting this to the test, I combed the counters of two highwayside convenience stores, not knowing what to expect, especially from the supposedly healthier all-natural, whole wheat types of crackers, etc.

Without fail, when I picked up a package of cookies or crackers, the ingredients read either "hydrogenated" or "partially hydrogenated soybean oil" or some other vegetable oil. The level of my dismay rose with each new reading.
One's first reaction tends to be that we are cheated by the many products tainted by cholesterol-inducing agents.

On second thought, we should want to kick ourselves for being slaves to appearances. We want things, including food, to appear a certain way whether it is healthy or not, even though they serve us just as well in their natural state.

Deciding to do something about this, I used peanut oil instead of margarine in my next batch of fudge candy. Since one stick of margarine equals a half cup, I simply poured a half cup of peanut oil into the boiling sugar and cream.

Eureka! The peanut oil was all around easier to deal with; no paper, no tussling, just pouring. With bated breath, I engineered the boiling, the spooning out, the hardening.

We like illusions

What a relief it was to see a product just as good, if not better, than that obtained through the use of block margarine. It opened up a whole new world of cooking and eating.

It proved in short order that we do not need emulsified vegetable oils to cook foods or to eat

Still, we like illusions, which are nothing else but deceptions geared to tease our eyes, ears, nose, touch, taste, appetite and our general desire to pursue. possess and use.

Hollywood, Tinseltown, is the Mecca of all illusions and, in many ways, the unfortunate standard by which we set our ideals and measures for beauty, appearances and impressions.

Just as we like to spread margarine, we look for the pretty or handsome face, the dynamite figure, the fetching voice, gestures, gait and all the movements of people around us.

That is not bad of itself, but we tend to let the illusions formed by those things cloud over the real substance of our human relations: personality, character, morals, ideals.

"By their fruits you shall now them" (Mt. 7: 16).

Thomas, Longo named to Commission on Women

Joan Thomas of Bay St. Louis and Jean Longo of Waveland are among the 16 women appointed by the Most Rev. Joseph L. Howze to serve on the first Commission on Women for the Catholic Diocese of Biloxi.

Thomas, director of religious education for St. Rose de Lima Parish, is a member of the parish council and liturgy commit-tee. She is associate director of her parish's RCIA program which instructs adults interested in joining the Catholic Church,

She chairs the history department at Bay High School and is a member of the Bay St. Louis Girls Little League Board of Directors and the Knights of St. Peter Claver Ladies Auxiliary. She has two daughters.

Longo, a member of St. Clare Parish, is a lector, eucharistic minister and choir member. She was a RENEW facilitator and volunteer for St. Clare School. She is active with the American Legion Auxiliary and the Mississippi Water and Pollution Control Operators Association. A life member of the Girl Scouts of America, she helped to pioneer the Religious Awards Program for the Gulf Pines Girl Scout Council. She has six children.

The commission will advise Bishop Howze on a full range of women's issues and will function as a liaison between women in the diocese and the bishop by raising and promoting awareness of the evolving roles of women in the Church and

"A year of prayer, preparation and study went into the establishment of this historic commission," said commission chair Gwen Gollotte of Nativity BVM Cathedral Parish in Biloxi; "The bishop's task group on women in church and society has been meeting for a year. Additionally, we have involved women from around our diocese through a three-day symposium last November and have solicited their opinions and concerns through questionnairs distributed throughout the diocese.

"Bishop Howze felt it was essential to appoint commission members of varied ages, occupations, interests and cultural backgrounds to reflect the diversity of Catholic women in south Mississippi," she pointed out. "We will be asking other women, in addition to our commission members, to serve on special committees dealing with spirituality, communicaby-laws, education and social justice.

Other commission members include Mila Bernich, Our Lady of Fatima Parish; Carolyn Perry, Our Mother of Sorrows Parish; Jackie Trieu, St. John's Parish; Edna E. Fields, St. Peter the Apostle Parish;

Brenda Brown Finnegan, St. Elizabeth Seton Parish; Susan Griggs, St. Alphonsus Parish; Rebecca Boudreaux, St. Tho-mas Parish, Long Beach and St. Paul Parish, Pass Christian;

Bobbye Gates, St. Theresa Parish, Gulfport; Margaret

Gulf Coast Women's Center in need of local volunteers

Special to the Echo

How important are volunteers to the work done by the Gulf Coast Women's Center? They are essential!

The Center provides temporary shelter for battered women and their children, operates a pre-school for the younger children, and assists women who have been sexually assaulted.
Its 24-hour crisis line means that any person who is the victim of domestic violence or rape is able to reach out for help at any time of the day or night and receive an immediate response. clunteers are needed not only to maintain the crisis line, but also in a variety of other ways. There are a number of important programs involving the children.

The center needs specialized volunteers such as art and music the apists, as well as volunteers who work with the everyday activities that occur in a pre-school setting. An infant stimulation program is being initiated so that small children will have special attention focused on their needs.

Staff and volunteers work together to provide the needed assistance in the different services the Center provides to those it serves. Volunteers who work on the crisis line usually serve on the line one week a month and are required to work only in the county in which they live. They receive calls in their homes during the evening hours and weekends, and are provided with a pager so they can continue their regular routine during their week of service and be contacted if they are needed.

The main requirement for being a crisis line volunteer is to realize the seriousness of the situation and to make a commitment to the program. Volunteers must be compassionate, nonjudgmental people who are good listeners.

Prospective volunteers are provided with two full days of certified training to prepare them for this important work. The training will take place in June on the Gulf Coast.

Anyone interested in volunteering for the crisis line or any of the other programs provided by the Gulf Coast Woman's Center is requested to call Augusta Toomer at 435-1968.

Mack Herring

A first-hand look at the space program

Special to the Echo

In September 1962, President John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson and renowned rocket scientist Dr. Wernher von Braun walked through a massive hangar at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., and examined one of the earliest rockets in America's emerging space program—the Saturn I. Walking along with these three great historical icons of our nation's past was a young NASA public affairs specialist named Mack Herring.

Herring, who now resides in Bay St. Louis, was responsible for escorting the media during the President's visit and remembers vividly the conversation that took place between the three men.

"We were walking along side the huge rocket," reminisced Herring, "and Kennedy told Dr. von Braun, I made a promise to the American people that we'd land a man on the moon in this decade. Do you thing we can do this?"

"Von Braun said, Mr. President, you made that promise and, by God, we will keep it," said Herring.

Throughout his lifetime,

Throughout his lifetime, Herring has seen the history of space flight not as a mere observer, but as an actual participant in every important event that has taken Americans into space.

He has played an important role in various NASA activities ranging from the moon landing to the first Space Shuttle. Herring was responsible for the access to important information on NASA and the space center.

Herring was the first fulltime NASA employee to be sent to what is known today as Stennis Space Center. He arrived in South Mississippi in February 1963 and was responsible for preparing the way for the con-

NASA program that lends out moon rocks to the public and was a consultant to James Michener during his writing of the Book Space.

Today, Herring is the NASA historian charged with documenting the rich history of NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center. His office has over 7,000 historical files which include everything from oral histories to declassifed government documents.

Through Herring's diligent efforts, the volumes of historical information have now been incorporated into a computerized database. Herring has also published a two-volume reference guide which allows easy struction of the new space center and the large influx of people that would follow.

"The first mission that I was given as public affairs officer was to inform the people in the local communities that we were going to build this place and to give them as much information as possible," said Herring. "We were about to start one of the largest construction projects in the nation right here in Hancock County and people had hundreds of questions."

The University of Alabama graduate wasted no time in accomplishing this task, speaking to numerous clubs and church groups. Wherever people were gathered, Herring could be found spreading the good news about the space program and the construction of Stennis Space Center.

Herring served as the public affairs officer at SSC for six years before being transferred to NASA Headquarters in Washington, DC., in 1969. While in Washington, he assumed the role of astronaut protocol officer and got a chance to coordinate the media and speaking engagements for astronauts John Glenn and Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the surface of the moon.

"Neil was one of the most impressive people I have worked with," said Herring. "He was just so sincere and honest, and he really wanted things to be done right. Neil had a real sense of his place in history and did everything he could to make sure it wasn't tarnished."

Herring also served in the recovery ship control room during astronaut splashdowns. He was responsible for relaying information to the press which appeared in news stories throughout the world.

"We had some very close calls out on that recovery ship," said Herring. "One that specifically comes to mind is the Apollo-

Fund raiser to benefit retarded citizens of Hancock County

Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre proclaimed the week of May 10-16 as "Knights of Col-umbus Days to Help Retarded Citizens."

The Hancock County Knights of Columbus is holding its annual Tootsie Roll drive during the last three weeks of May to benefit mentally retarded citizens of the county.
"All the money raised is strictly for charity and every penny donated is used for Hancock County," said Tom Mitchell, deputy grand knight. The Kiln Council will be selling Tootsie Rolls at the Highway 90 and 603 intersection and the Bay St. Louis Council will man the intersection of Highway 90 and Main Street.

The Knights will also make personal calls on businesses in the area.

The fund raiser assists Hancock Industries located in Port Bienville Industrial Park, that provides work for mentally handicapped adults.

All donations received are matched three for one from the federal level allowing the mentally handicapped workers a more productive workshop.

Hancock County Assn. of Family and Community Education

The monthly meeting of the Hancock County FCE (formerly Homemakers Association) was called to order by Inez Olivier, vice president, standing in for Dolores Bullitt. Minutes were read by Joann Little and the treasurer's report by Dorothy Bessey. Committee chairmen gave reports. Jeann Little asked all to participate in the new secycling program in the county.

Charlotte Edwards reported the clubs are involved in several projects helping the community, including giving food and money to the food pantry; donating magazines to the Retardation Center; keeping neighborhood streets clean; giving used books to the library and eyeglasses to Habitat/Humanity and a subscription of National Geographic World to Bay Elementary School.

Beverly Vaughan showed the new book, The Facts on File Visual Dictionary, that the association gave to the Waveland Library, It was also mentioned that Beatrice Ladner received an award for 25 years of service to the literacy program at the library.

Kay Buccola reminded members to finish all pieces that were to be entered in the Cultural Arts Fair. She also said she has given some programs on quilting in the schools and at Learning Ladies

Tommie Ziegler, ways and means chairman, raffled a cookbook, one of the club's fund raisers. Charlotte Edwards was the winner. The members were asked to make bottle dolls for the State FCE Association meeting which will be in Starkville the end of May. A report was given on the area meeting, and it was mentioned that Bullitt received first place award in the secretary's record

Following the meeting Jean Barrett and Margie Welsh gave a program on reading food labels and nutrition.

The next meeting will be May 26.

"After splashdown, the astronauts were sent to a hospital in Hawaii, and I was assigned to stay with them while they were there. We had media from all over the world in that hospital. Those were some nights that I definitely didn't get much

Although his time in Washington was very exciting, Herring's love for the Mississippi Gulf Coast brought him back to Stennis Space Center in 1972 to resume his role as Public Affairs Officer until 1990.

During this time, he developed a visitors program and pushed for the construction of SSCs Visitors Center, which thousands of people from around the world visit and enjoy each year. Visitors Center exhibits depict not only NASA programs but those of many of the 18 other federal and state gencies in residence at SSC.

Herring also forged the creation of a NASA Teacher Resource Center at Stennis Space Center, which provides educational materials to area teachers, such as lesson plans and videotapes, to help encourage students to
